DUMFRIES PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Conscil-Chamber, Dunifico, 18th Day, 1798.

THE Magistrates and Council of Dumfries, having taken into their serious comideration the ruinous state of the Public SCHOOL-HOUSES in this Burgh, and particularly, that the Gramma and Waltino School-Houses, must soon be-pulled down, for accommodating the Public with a more convenient access to the New Bridge—Consideration also, that the character and credit of the various Schools have long heen supported in high respectability, from the pains which have ever been taken to procure Masters of the best reputation and abilities—And Fratures, consideration the many and essential advantages, that would infallibly result to the youth of the present and succeeding generations, whose lot it may be to attend these Seminarics, if New Buildings were created on an enlarged and commodious plan. The Magistrates and Council, deeply impressed with these considerations, are anxiously solicitous to have such desirable Buildings eracted in a pleasure, convenient, and healthy situation; but as the Funda of the Town have been much enerosched upon of late years, by the very great expences of repairing their Caul, and other useful and Public Works, they have Rasoutven, after the example of the Citles of Edinburgh, Glasgow, Invernors, and Ayr, to resort to the aid of Public Subscription, trusting to a liberal support from the generous and well disposed of every class of the community.

In a particular manner, however, they place their confidence in such Parents and Heads of Families, us, from their local stantion, are most likely to derive advantage to their confidence in such Parents and Heads of Families, us, from their local stantion, are most likely to derive advantage to their confidence in such Parents and Heads of Families, us, from their local stantion, are most dikely to derive advantage to their confidence in such Parents and Heads of Families, us, from their local stantion, are most dikely to derive advantage to their confidence in such was presented to t DUMFRIES PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

No. 6. Seventeen acres, laid down last year with barley, clovers, and ryegrass.

No. 7. Fifereen acres, hill pasture, not valuable.

The first six above mentioned fields are in the best possible heart and condition, having been for the last three years in the natural possession of the proprietor, and form a most desirable object for any tenant who wishes for a compact farm, yielding immediate returns, and without an acre of bad ground in it. The farmstead is about a maile eastward from inverkeithing, within half a mile of a good corn mill, and less than that distance from the coal harbour, pf & Davids.

If the bounds inbowe described are not thought sufficiently extensive, there are a number of fields in old grass immediately adjoining, three or four of which, the priprieter has no objection to include in the lease, or the remain may be accommodated with them for pasture from year to year.

Coffee-house, upon the 22d February 1799, at two o clock afternoon,

THAT Set of Elegant NEW BUILDINGS in Prince's Street, west of Castle Sueet, No. 79, built several years ago, consisting of eight different Lodgings, to be sold in one for separate Lots or Lodgings, as purchasers may incline.

The Houses are known to be excellent in the design, and superior in finishing, built at nearly double the ordinary experice, and they have every conveniency.

The two largest Lodgings, consist each of two Flars.—In the under Story there are three good Bed-rooms well lighted, two of them to the street, one of which is large with will-presses, well calculated for a writing office; and all so well finished, that they are as lodgishe as any of the upper room.—A spacious Ritchen, 22 feet square—a Scullery—Store-room.—Pantries—Closets, and Servants appartments.—And in the upper Shorey, which is above 13 feet high—a Dining-room, 24 feet by 16, finished with Columns and Pilasters in one end—and a Drawing-room 22 feet square, in which is a fine Chimney of Sicilian Jasper Marble—three large Bed-rooms—Burlers Pentry, Closets, and other conveniencies.

The second Storey 13, and the third 12 feet high—each of these Storeys is divided into two Lodgings, but are so constructed, that if necessary by opening a door, one Flat may all be occupied as one House.—in each Lodging there is a Dining-room—Drawing-room having a bow, and two large Bed-rooms, all as elegant, of the same demonstors, and equally well finished with those in the large Lodging immediately below—two Bed-closets, one of them lighted—a Kitchen—Servants appartments, Store-room, Burler a Pantry, and other conveniencies.

The Actic Storey is in like manner divided into two lodge.

Bed-rooms, and two large Closets, with a number of Preses, and Kitchen, with Store-room and pantries—the Dining room, Drawing-room, and Kitchen, without any cuncei ing.—And in the Garret Storey above, communicating by a stair within the Lodging, there is a large room proper for a nurser, a Bedroom, and different appartments for acreams. The Lodgings in this Story have a great number of conveniences, fie to accommodate pretty large families.

There is a Garden, Coach-house, Harnes-room—Stable for four Horses, Hay-loft, Litter-loft and Wash-house, with a Pump-well of fine apring water, and Ciscern supplied by lead pipes from the City Reservoir, Cellars and Wash-house, Pump-well at the Stables, Offices, and a Cistern supplied from the City Reservoir, with another Pump-well of fine apring water in the sunk area, for the use of the Flats or Upper Lodgings, Cellars, and all necessary Offices. The roof is finished in an uncommon strong manner, with a large lead platform, and the water falling on the roof, carried off by lead pipes, to the common sewers which keeps the front and doors always dey.

The situation commanding a south view past the Castle is very delightful, and a more agreeable place of residence can hardly be found.

For further particulars application may be made to Mr. George Ted merce Hosenschape.

For further particulars application may be made to Mr. George Tod, writer, Hanover Street, or Mr. Morison, writer, Parliament Square.

HOUSE OF COMMONS-Feb, 11. Sir WILLIAM GEARY presented a petition from cer

ain inhabitants of the counties of Effex and Kent, pray ing for leave to bring in a bill for making a tunnel der the Thames, that would unite the communication between the two coasts. The petition stated the great national utility of the measure; and as the difficulty and expense of erecting a bridge across would be immense this was not only the most facile, but the least extensive method that could be adopted to accomplish it. The petition was ordered to lie on the table.

UNION WITH IRELAND. Sir John Sinchain, on the order of the day being read, appeared to lignify, that as it was understood a compact was made, that no opposition should be given to the Speaker leaving the chair, he should referve what he had to offer concerning this measure, until the House that for his part he was not privy to it. There migh have been fuch an agreement made by the Right Hon Gentleman opposite to him, and his friends. But if tha were intended to ftop independent loquacity on the one fide, it should equally operate to muzzle his majority on the other; therefore, so far from concurring with any agreement, relating in any way to the fubject, he emthe chair that inflant I will leave the House."

As, however, it had been idly propagated that he only opposed the measure none as ill-timed, and did not resist it in principle, he thought it proper, before he retired, to declare, that in principle he condemned it, now and at any other time. His opinion was, also, that the Irish Parliament had no comparation to a suppose the condemned that the Irish Parliament had no competency to cancel their indepen dence, they were delegated to support, not to betray

In like manner he declared the English Parliament incompetent to deprive the people of their natural inde-pendence. The case of the Scotca Union was widely different from this, to suppose for an instant that the English Parliament had this right, 2s, well might it be argued that Henry the Eifth might have transferred if to Paris, or Philip, the hulband of Mary, to Madrid, or George, the hulband of Anne, to Denmark. Thus far as to his opinion on the fubject, which he thought i would be unfair and unmanly not to openly and deci dedly avow. He had now no more to offer fave this That he was refolved to revive the fubject concerning the Irish Catholics (which he had afready submitted to the House), at the first convenient feason." Thus faying, he instantly withdrew, accompanied by Mr Tierney, Mr St John, General Fitzpatrick, and several others

Mr MARTIN would oppose the measure, if he though were to be forced on the Irish nation; at the same time he was apprehensive, that if time were loft in adopting something like this measure, Ireland would be

The House then in a Committee, Mr Douglas in the Chair, Mr Hobnouss faid, he differed from his honourable friends who left the House; he would remain to watch the progress of the measure, and, if reason and opportunity afforded, to take part in the discussion, as ccord with his duty.

Mr BANKS, in the most decisive manner, resisted the measure-its magnitude and importance were of the first degree. Ireland, if even the principle was prudent, prefented berfelf in fuch an attitude, as to render the coa lition dangerous to this country and to the empire. A wicked policy has prevailed, and still continues to prevail, and which the express terms of this Union maintains, that must, if the Legislatures of the two countries agree to the measure, eternally separate them; this was removed, no fafety politically, or otherwife, could exist by the medium of a Union. Of all the parts of the civilized world infinitely less improvement of intellect or manners fall to the lot of the native Irish during the last 300 years. Hence all those distractions on account of religion; but there were other and ftronger caufes for thefe diforders than religion, their property despoiled of that by invaders, whose posterity are in possession s a much greater stimulus, to rebellion .- They there fore hate what they have been traditionally taught to believe that they ought to hate, English connection. He remarked that the circumstance of attempting to force this measure now, would be productive of consequences, and concluded with stating, that instead of keeping the friends we already have in that country we should make them enemies; their Militia confisted of 22,000, of which 17,000 were Romanists; the Yeomanry were of the same persuasion; those people fought the battles of England, and they should be tected, therefore a line should be drawn between those persons, and the lower classes of Catholics. The hands of the government should be so strengthened, the former received into every natural and political right, the latter in due course .- Otherwife, and by a Union, Ireland must be held as a conquered country, and the Independent Company of Invalids at Guernsey, vice Waugh, The SPEARER faid, he owned that he entertained a tradictory reports are in circulation. The Only very different opinion from that of his Hon. Friend who had just spokes, who had declared that the prefeat state of Ireland was such, that in his opinion it would be unfafe for this country to coalefce with it.-The Hon. Gentleman thought, that the remedy was not fuited to the evil, but, although the effect of this measure would not go so far as to destroy, yet he could not help thinking that it would tend at least to allay those animolities which subsisted in Ireland, for a time; and he hoped at no distant time that they would be extinguished for ever. The Hon. Gentleman objected to an Union on the ground of the hostility of the Catholics to the English nation, but this measure would have a tendency to foften their afperity.

The Hon. Gentleman (Mr Banks) thought a diferinination should be made betwixt those Catholics in Ireland who had remained faithful and loyal, and those who had raifed the standard of inferrection and rebellion against the legitimate Government of the country, and he had fuggested the mode by which he wished to make this discrimination, by re-enacting the Popery laws with regard to those who had been in rebellion, whilst the oyal part should be introduced to the gradual enjoyment of the privileges of Protestant subjects. But if any thing or the privileges of Authorities, and add fuel to the flame, this plan would have such a tendency, by creating new subjects for division and animosty. The Hon. Gentlefubjects for division and animosity. The Hon. Gentle-man also seemed to think that the Parliament of Ireland was competent to remedy the evils under which that country grouned-but were this the general fense of the House, the Committee would not now be fitting on the present resolutions. Some grievances, it would be admitted, the Parliament of Ireland was competent to relieve; but no remedy, he would contend, was so likely to remedy the evils complained of, as a Legislative U nion between the two countries.

The SPRAKER faid, he wished the adoption of fystem by which the hostile mind of the people of Ire land might be corrected, and it might be rendered im-possible for one object to be pursued in one country, the attainment of which should not be as much defired in the other. The Hon. Gentleman thought the best ties were those of a commercial connexion; but these ties were certainly infufficient to cure the evils complained of and the cure of which were only to be found in this measure of a Union,

With regard to the settlement in 1782, it tended, in his opinion, to relax the connexion between the two countries too much, unless it was intended to substitute ome other fystem ; and he thought that the relaxation of the penal laws in 1793 was dangerous, in confe quence of the two countries being loofened by the re-peal of the 6th George I. The fullem of 1782, coupled with the proceedings of 1793, might have exifted in times of tranquillity; but was not calculated to bear up against that political tempest which threatened to carry defolation along with it. A measure such as the prefere was expedient, even previous to the rebellion; but fince then it became, in his opinion, a mea fure of necessity.

With respect to Catholic emancipation, he was satis fied, that fo far from this measure tending to appeale, it would only ferre to aggravate and inflame, while the Parliament of Ireland remained in its present state. Here the Speaker quoted Mr Foster's words on the subject. By such a step the vital interests of the British Empire would be endangered, and the situation of the Protestants would be rendered worse than that of the Catho lies at the prefent moment.—After pointing out fome of the prominent existing grievances in Ireland, with the causes of them, the Speaker faid he must contend that the confolidation of the two Legislatures was neceffary for the redrefs of them.—By this measure Ire-land would enjoy her local advantages, by enjoying the benefit of English capitalists; and if persons possessing capitals in this country should, in consequence of the secarity arising from a Union, employ part of it in Ire-land, Great Britain would not lose what Ireland might gain; but this circumstance would tend to excite in-dustry, create wealth, and improve manners; it would give authority to the laws, and introduce chearful obe lience ; and in those places most distinguished for affail finations and opposition to Government, chearful in-dustry, labour, good order, and tranquillity would be introduced.

The SPEAKER then adverted to the various object ns which had been made to this measure. The le gitimate right of the Parliament of Ireland to agree to a Union had been queltioned; but the opinions of Sir M. Hales, Sir Ed. Coke, and Jultice Blackstone all stated, and their authorities were decisive, that in the Parliament alone did this right refide. He denied also that the final adjustment in 1782 could be adduced a-gainst an Union by perfect agreement. He remarked t as a fingular circumstance, that the terms " final adjustment" were not used in the Address of the House of Commons of Ireland unto the King, although in his Majesty's Message to the House that term was use of. He concluded an able speech by declaring, that although he thought the measure of an Union ne ceffary, and calculated to produce very beneficial confequences, and could not but feel anxious for its fuccefs, yet hoped it would only be carried into effect by the free and unbiassed concurrence of the Parhament of Ireland, and that unless it was effected by that concurrence, it might on no account whatever be attempt ed to be pushed forward by any other means.

The resolutions were then severally read; and after few observations from Mr Wilberforce Bird, who expressed, on the part of the manufacturers of this country, a jealoufy of the participation of trade, as expreffed in the 6th resolution, to which Mr Pitt appeared to reply very farisfactorily; and likewife, after fome ob-fervations from Mr Pole Carew, relative to the 7th resolution, to which also Mr Pitt replied, the whole was carried, and the report ordered to be confidered on Thursday at ten o'clock .- Adjourned.

an officer on board the vanguard, dated Palermo, Sicily, famary 2; to his friends in Norwich:

We arrived here on the 25th ult. at night, having the King and Queen of Naples on board, with all their family, Sir W. Hamilton, a number of the nobility, &cc. family, Sir W. Framitton, a number of the nobility, &c. On our return to Naples, after landing 8000 of their toops at Leghorn, we learnt that the Neapolitan officers had deferted to the French, and the army totally difhad deterted to the French, and the army totally dil-haded itself. The revolutionary party at Naples being allowery powerful and menacing, the King determined apos leaving the city in the night, having previously by our boats put all his treasure on board the Vanguard out boats put all his treature on board the Vanguard and Alemene frigate.—There were between 6 & 700 cales, half ankers, filled with filver, and a great many others with gold. In a heavy fouall on the way to Palemo, we fall three of our top fails, the Royal Family, &c. were fo much terrified, that they called their triefts, actually went to confession, and gave themselves to for lost. One of the young Princes died on the passing. At two P. M. we put the Queen and ladies on hore. At nine his Majesty was landed, and received by an aftenishing number of people—we had a full view of the whole feene, lying not 50 yards from the shore. Clase alongside of us are three Spanish ships, a 64, a 50, and four frigate, which had been up the Archipelago for quickfilver, and had put in here, being a neutra ort. Many a wishful eye is cast upon them every day; and although the only English Thip here, every man in the Vanguard would rejoice to hear orders to clear for action.—The Admiral we understand, intends to reurn to England in the fpring."

BOYD, BENFIELD, AND CO.

The following relates, in a great degree, to the sirate concerns of a Banking Company, and therefore would not have conceived ourselves justifiable in taking any notice of it, but the particulars being detailed a pamphlet, and circulated by one of the parties, and Loodon paper having made the following abstract ion that, we confider it noways intrenching upon mat-

A pamphlet, which has made much noise in th commercial world, was circulated yesterday by Mr Boyd, and, as it relates to a transaction of a public nature, is worthy the attention of our readers. It ap-pears that the Minister some time ago listened to the pressing solicitations of this Commercial House, and that a considerable sum of money was advanced by Government upon bills drawn on India, for which a and of the bond was given by the parties thus accommodated. This circumflance, by which Government becomes a preknow not a ferable creditor, know as a least creditor, has occasioned a great deal of discussived from the incondumnation in the city.

At a meeting of Gentlemen, friends to the House of Boyd, Benfield, and Co. held on the 5th instant, a charge was made, that when they folicited their friends to in in an advance on the security of Mr Benfield's diseet, the circumstance was concealed of his being sound to Government in a bond of 100,000l. for suns the chard and the Great House at the Cape of Good Hope.—
This charge, Mr Boyd, conceiving to be made directly to him has come forward and distributed a printed account of the whole translation.

Portugal is a papears from Mr Boyd's narrative, that on the 31st of October, 1797, Mr Benfield addressed a letter a Mr Dundas, in which he stated that having a large meeting in England, he offered to furnish the East Inia Company with 100,000l, to be paid at Madras in a condas at the rate of 6s. 6d, per Pagoda, the exchange nix, and Migus the 5th of das at the rate of 6s 6d. per Pagoda, the exchange Madras being, according to the latest advices, at the te of 8s. 6d. per Pagoda; and therefore, intreating Company to accomplish this transaction.

This proposal was not carried into effect, but it gave to an engagement on the part of Mr Walter Boyd, and his furcties (of which Mr Benfield was one) to nish 100,000! for his Majesty's service at the Cape

In December 1797, a negociation was fet on foot tween the Navy Office and Mr Boyd, for the supply 100,000l. in India for the service of his Majesty's there, and Mr Dundas, wishing to be satisfied that r Benfield poffeffed sufficient affets in India for the ittance of 100,000l. so the Cape, as well as for fecond 100,000l. requested a common friend, Mr Dowall, to defire Mr Boyd would procure a note of Benfield's India property. In confequence of which Byd wrote the following letter to Mr Benfield: 7 of MaBoyd's letter to Mr Benfield, with the copy of Mr Benfield's answer subjoined.

"My Dear Friend," Will you have the goodness to let me know what amount of your property in India is, because I un-mand Mr Dundas withes to be made sensible that are are sufficient means there for the two operations opoled? Pray put down your answer at the bottom of is note, for my government.

Mr Boyd transmitted the above to Mr M Dowall, with the following letter :Copy of Mr Boyd's letter to Mr M'Dowall, dated Dec 16. 1797.

MY DEAR SIR, "I enclose you the question I put to Mr Benfield, with his answer subjoined. I trust this will be considered as a sufficient proof of the evistence of ample means in India for the accomplishment of the engagement already entered into, as well as the one in contemplation; and when, to the knowledge of the means, is added the fecurity to be given here for the performance of the engagement, I should hope that Ministers would readily accede to the measure. I repeat what I have already so often said, that to be useful there should be no delay in the adoption and execution of

I fay nothing of the motives of a public nature which ought to weigh with Ministers on this occasion. They are, in my opinion, so strong as to justify an interposition on the part of Government, did no other motive whatever exist, and were it even attended with a certain degree of risk; but they become irrefistible when it is confidered that what is asked is fair, useful, and economical, and accompanied with no degree of rifk whatever.

Yours, &cc. WM. M'Dowal, Efq. "W. Boyn."

The negociation with the Navy Board was not con-The negociation with the Navy Board was not concluded till the 26th of January 1798, when, instead of money, it was proposed that bills should be furnished on Madras and Bombay. Mr Bensield then expressed the greatest reluctance to the drawing of bills, as being big with many dangers and difficulties. This produced a letter from Mr Boyd, calling upon him for an explanation, to which Mrs Benfield wrote to him a most elegant answer, but which Mr Boyd fays is dictated by Mr Benfield, " for although in every species of writing to which the most highly cultivated semale mind can direct its attention that fady has no fuperior, yet it certainly had not fallen within the circle of her purfuits to acquire so perfect a knowledge of mere matters of butiness, as is displayed in that letter."

However this may be, Mrs Benfield is admitted by all who knows her to be one of the most fenfible, as well as most amiable and accomplished women in England. This lady's letter flated the possible inconveni-ence of drawing bills, and concluded with a most for-cible appeal to take care of the interests of the House.

It was at last agreed that the operations should be confined to one half of the original sum, and not one word was ever told Mr Boyd in contradiction of the that the second of the India property until the end of November laft, when Mr Schneider faid that Mr Lenfield's India property was diffipated in supporting the house of Boyd, Benfield, and Co.—Mr Boyd took the alarm at this affertion; he declared that no .. ore than 76,345l. had been received for bills upon India by B. B. and Co. (including the 50,000l, to the Navy Board,) which was not two lacks of pagodas, whereas Mr B. had thated himfelf to be possessed of feven lacks 40,000 pagodas, which is equal to 200,000l. At a meeting of Gentlemen which took place on the 13th December last, it was tated by Mr Bensield, that 13th December last, it was stated by Mr Bensield, that the declaration of the 16th December 1797 was extorted from him by Mr Boyd, and that it was written, in fact, by Mr Boyd himself. Mr Boyd then says—4 The truth is, that Mr Bensield did request Mr Boyd to write, under his diction, the scroll of the declaration, in order that he, Mr Bensield, might write it our clear at the bottom of Mr Boyd's letter; and therefore Mr Boyd did write the fcroll, every word of which was dictated by Mr Benfield, as Mr Boyd, Jun. who was preferit, is ready to declare upon his oath. Mr Benneld put the feroll in his pocket after writing a fair

But at this meeting of the Gentlemen, friends to the House, Mr Benfield produced a memorandum of Mr Boyd's, to shew that he had been truly informed, and was aware that Mr Benfield did not affert that he had any fuch fum as feven lacks of Pagodas in Iudia, he having himfelf flated the amount at two lacks. This Mr Boyd also endeavours to explain, by faying that this re-ferred to another transaction altogether. That Mr Ben-Boyd allo endeavours to explain, by laying that this re-ferred to another transaction altogether. That Mr Ben-field, defiring to retire from the House, it was demand-ed from him, by Mr Boyd, that he should advance one hundred and twenty thouland pounds. This Mr Benheld helitated to do, flatting that he had two lacks of Pagodas, or 80,000l. only in India; but afterwards he feemed willing to raife three lacks, or 120,000l. to retite. Mr Boyd fays, that it was natural enough for Mr Benfield to itruggle for a good bargain, and that when he faid that he had no more than two lacks, he agreed that Mr. Renfield could give no more, but he was uniformly made to believe that the statement he made in December 1797 was correct, and this is the justification which he gives for calling on his friends to come forward to ferve the House without disclosing to them the obligations they had come under to Government.-This is Mr Boyd's statement of the case, which he ad-

"To the Gentlemen interested in the Mortgages of Shaftes-bury and Woodhall for the service of Mess. BoxD, Ben-vield, and Co."

We only notice it, because it refers to a public transaction, though Mr Boyd, by printing the narration, and distributing it, has in truth laid the whole before the world, which is thus called upon to judge between

HOUSE OF COMMONS-Feb. 11

Mr BARRINGTON called the attention of the House o a circumstance of the utmost importance, and peculiarly deferving of Parliamentary investigation. It would appear from the public prints, at least those of Great Britain, that the silence of some parts of this kingdom had been construed into an acquiescence of the measure of an Union, but it was, he said, his intention on a future day to shew that this was not the fact, and to bring proof to the bar of the Houle, that the most extraordinary, if not military, means were reforted to, in order to prevent the public voice from reaching Parliament .-The circumstance to which he alluded was that of a requisition to the Mayor of Clonmel, for a meeting of the inhabitants of that town, which was accordingly fixed pursuant thereto, but prevented by the interference of Sir Charles Afgill, who threatened military execution on the people should they attempt to meet. If his information was correct, the instance of Clonnel was not folitary, a meeting was prevented in a fimilar manner at Cork, and letters had been written to several High Sheriffs, to hinder them from calling meetings of their counties. He then flood-up merely for the put-pole of giving notice of his future intentions of bringing the buliness forward, and that Government might be prepared to meet the investigation.

The Attorney General averred the infinuation against Sir C. Afgill to be wholly unfounded, and explained and vindicated the conduct of that officer on plained and vindicated the conduct of that officer on the occasion alluded to. He faid, that being a large and proclaimed district, Sir Charles had only objected to an indiscriminate meeting, but told the Mayor of Clonmel, that if he called together those competent by aw to express their opinions on a public measure, namely, the burgesses, freemen, &c. he would give no interuption whatever to their proceedings—and for the truth of this, the Attorney General appealed to a Member for the county of Tipperary then in the House.

He spoke in strong terms of condemnation of the idea that had gone abroad of the British militia having come to this country to sapport measures hostile to itr liberties he contended that those brave men were too fincerely attached to that liberry, which was the hirth right and bleffing of Englishmen, to violate it in another country, and he warned the Floude how it encouraged and entered into hostility against the Executive Power, unless it was wished to invite another invasion.

Mr Baraington disclaimed any personal charge against General Sir Charles Asgill, but as the Right Hon, and searned Gentleman had been so warm in vindication of that officer, on the principle of his attachment to British and Irish liberty, he begged leave to re-mind him that this officer was the same who had taken

Out of the hands of the civil power.

Here Mr Saranza observed, that there was no queflion then before the House, and the order of the day was naffed to

The order of the day having been read, and the House called over, Lord Conny observed, that the agitation of the public mind, in consequence of the measure of an Union brought forward in that House, and the avowed determination of the Brigin Minister on that subject, called for the serious consideration of the House, and he faid that on an early day he would bring forward a motion calculated to allay the public apprehension and slarm that existed.

Mr O'Dong gave notice that he intended shortly bringing before the House a motion of the usmost importance to the liberty of the subject, which had been recently violated grossly in the person of an individual.

Mr Rochfort, adverting to the words made use of on a former night, that the country could not go on as it was, begged to know from a Noble Lord if those words implied any intention on his part of bringing forward any other measure of great importance in the course of the session, or if, having pronounced thus on the state of the country, he lest to Parliament to apply a emedy, or to any member to propose it.

Lord Castleragh acknowledged that he had ex-

Lord CASTLEREAGH acknowledged that he had expressed himself in that manner, and that an Union was considered by him as the only radical remedy, and the only measure on which the ultimate peace and prosperity of the country and the empire rested, but that he had no immediate intention of bringing forward any measure of peculiar importance, and that when he had, he would not fail giving proper notice to the House.

Sir H. Cavendish moved for a Committee to be appointed to enquire if there was any place in the Bay of Dublin, where a fafe harbour could be made for this failing to and from this port. The frequency of this wrecks claimed this measure, and, he was fure, would recommend it to Parliament. The Committee was pa-

> DUBLIN, Feb. 12. BURNING OF THE SUN.

This day, at one o'clock, pursuant to an order of the Hoose of Commons, three Publications of the Sun, a London Ministerial Print, of the 28th, 29th, and 30th of January last, were burnt, by the bands of the Com-mon Executioner, the High Shoriffs of the city of Dublin, and a military guard attending. The con course of speciators assembled on this occasion was the greatest we ever witnessed, and composed of every de-description of persons.

The windows and roofs of the houses presented nothing but spectators, and as each paper was committed to the sames, loud acclamations followed the act, and the whole was closed by three universal huzzas, and the waving of hats. We are happy to add, that al-though the crowd was immense, the slighest accident did not occur.

When at last an old sword, rawry, jarged, and long,
He produc'd as a neasuch, to estonish the throng;
This sword of all swords says he, mark hilt and blade,
Is the most famous sword shat was ever yet made:
It was Balaam's, the prophet, who made his ass quake,
And the sight on't when drawn, made the animal speak.
Nay, that's a miarake, said a grave stander by,
Balaam wanted a sword, and between you and I,
He wished for one too, but his wish was in vain.
So the prophet was riding without one that's plaits.
Why then, says the Soph, 'tis but shifting the case,
And the sword to your sophstry shall not give place;
For as pure naked trust I in vain never fish 'dor,
This sword of all swords was the sword that he wish'd for.

SALF OF LANDS IN THE COUNTY OF FIFE,

SALF OF LANDS IN THE COUNTY OF FIFE,

By private Bargain.

A LL and Whole the Just and Equal Haif of the LANDS of POLDUFF, and of the town thereof, commonly called Smiddygreen, all and whole the orchard, ward, and place of Inchmurdo; as also, all and whole the flour, barley, and cora mills, of Craigenwar, commonly called Parkmiln, with the miln lands and multures thereof, all lying in the parish of St Andrew's, and Sherriffdom of Fife; as also the superiority of a sixteenth part and a thirty second part of the town and lands of Kingsbarns, lying in the parish of Kingsbarns and sherriffdom foresaid.

These lands are well known, are of a very superior quality.

These lands are well known, are of a very superior quality, and are all nearly inclosed and subdivided with stone dykes, hedges, and ditches. On the property there is between 30 and 40 acres of fine thriving young plantations of different kinds of wood, and also two pidgeon-houses. The post road leading from St Andrew's to Crail, runs through the estate, which is distant from St Andrew's four miles, and from Crail five miles, and is in the close neighbourhood of the thriving and populous villages of Kingsbarns and Boarhills. The post goes every day from St Andrew's to Crail, and returns in the evening.

A complete new mansion house and offices have been built within these four years, on a neat and genteel stile, and the house lately painted.—It consists of dining-room, drawing-foom, parlour, seven bed rooms kitchen, laundry, stullery, with various other conveniencies; there is abundance of excellent water; in the back area conducted in leaden pipes. The house is beautifully situated on the banks of the river Kenley, commands extensive prospects of the country, the coast of Angus, and of the German Ocean, and the garden and orchard are well stocked with the best kinds of fruit trees.

The leader and mile are all set to treans upon leases, ex-well stocked with the best kinds of fruit trees.

The lands and mills are all set to tenants upon leases, excepting about to acres in the hands of the proprietor. Upon the expiry of the leases, a very considerable encrease of rent may be expected; the flour and barley mills are almost new, and the machinery of the very best construction; the command of water is very great, scarcely an instance has occurred of these mills being stopped either in winter or summer from the want of it; the situation is peculiarly well adapted for the except of mills for the manufacturing of cotton yarn, &c. both on account of the fall of water, and being lin the neighbourhood of the villages of Kingsbarns and Boarhile.

All the lands hold of the crown, and afford a freshold qualification in the county. The mansion-house, offices, and the lands in the hands of the proprietor, may be entered to immediately, and it's purchaser inclines he may have the household furniture, which is new, at a valuation.

For further particulars apply to Joim Campbell, junior, writer to the signet, North Frederick Street, Edinburgh.

THE GENUINE DISTINGUISHED PARTS COUNTERFEITS

By the King's Patent.

MR R. JOHNSTON, Apothecary, No. 15. Greek Street,

Medicine of established repute and extensive sale, respectfully informs the Nobility, Gentry, and Public, he has obtained the King's Patent for his Invention, not to recommend but to disting King's Patent for his invention, not to recommend but to distinguish WHITEHEAD's ESSENCE of MUSTARD from spurious imitations.

Five years have now elapsed since Mr Johnston first made known to the world this very extraordinary Medicine. During this short period its efficacy has been so clearly demonstrated that its sale has infinitely exceeded any former example. Comparatively, there are few families which have not either heard paratively, there are few families which have not either heard of or experience its beneficial effects; and with heartfelt satisfaction he has the happiness to declare WHITEHEAD's ESSENCE of MUSTARD has cured more persons afflicted with Rheamatinn, Gent, Limbego, Palry, Complaint: of the Stomach, and other Painful Maladies, than all the medicines ever before made public. It has obtained the approbation of many eminent men of the Faculty, and honoured with the unsolicited support and recommendation of the first families in the kingdom.

made public. It has obtained the approbation of many emenent men of the Faculty, and honoured with the unsolicited support and recommendation of the first families in the kingdom. As the bottles, boxes, labels, and bills of directions of this original medicine are closely copied, and the words "By Royal Authority," artfully substituted for the words "By the King's Patent," it may clude common observation: Mr Johnston therefore recommends the afflicted to be particular in the purchase. Whitehead's Essence of Mustard, is prepared and sold, in Pills and in a fluid state, at 2s. 9d. each box or bottle, by the Inventor, R. Johnston, apothecary and chemist, No. 15. Greek Street, Soho, London. It is distinguished from connetefeits "By the King's Patent," and the signature "R. Johnston," in his own hand-writing, on each label; sold also by his appointment, by ANDREW SMITH, No.38. North Bridge, Husband, Elder, and Co. R. Scott, apothecary, Wm. Raeburn, and T Spence, Edinburgh; Phorson, Berwick; Allan, Dundee; Inglis and Disson, Dumfries; Mintosh & Co. Inverness; Craige, Montrose; Cave, Banff; Mitchell, Aberdeen; Mennons and M'Donald, Glasgow. G. HILB L. ALINS.

N. B. The Fluid Essence immediately allays their tormenting itching, and will assuredly prevent them from breaking, even when turned quite black; and if used according to the directions, will absolutely cure them by three or four applications.
